Fred Colantonio to Harry J. Joyce Colantonio has created a book composed of his interviews, impressions and recollections with professional ballplayers, managers, media people an author, business owners and regular folks. He found not everyone is willing to give even the slightest information about themselves for personal reasons and for reasons dictated by the management who employ them. With others he found them to be cooperative and warm.

The Best of Colantonio In his latest memoir, Colantonio is compelled to reveal facets of his life that have given him joy and caused him anguish. Discovering that bias, prejudice and intimidation continue into adulthood, he pours his heart and soul into his work. Undaunted by naysayers who have tried to impede his enthusiasm he proved them wrong by continuing to improve himself. Working full-time and going to college part-time he got his degree in Mass Communications from Columbia College of Chicago.

His radio career began in 1970 and lasted 37 years. His illustrious career in newspapers began with selling newspapers at his newsstand as a youngster. In 1960 he began reporting the news and it led him to become a newspaper sports journalist. As a journalist, he contributed articles to various newspapers in the Chicago area. He achieved his dreams by owning, publishing, editing and being the journalist of The Chicago Sports Journal.

Frederick A. Colantonio graduated from Columbia College of Chicago, with a B.A. Degree in Mass Communications (Radio). He has been a newspaper journalist since 1960 and a broadcast journalist since 1970 covering a variety of sports focusing on baseball and hockey. He has provided up-to-the-minute traffic reports for Chicago radio and his feature stories have been published in Chicago community newspapers. He is the publisher and journalist of The Chicago Sports Journal, covering stories from baseball, hockey and other sectors of sports and compiles in-depth interviews with owners, general managers, athletes and media directors.

Seven Souls on a Cross Paul Sentes builds a cross, places it in his front yard, hangs on the cross and begins the most inspirational, spiritual, dramatic and physically challenging undertaking of his life. Unwilling to let his emotions control his life, he soulfully cries out to God for help and receives a mystical vision of him on a cross. Paul's controversial act reverberates through his town, the church and the world. Thousands come to pray and ask for healing. Six souls, crippled by their emotions, become intimately involved with Paul, during his stay on the cross. They share their dreams, anxieties and fears with him. In his delusional madness, one of the souls commits an act that stuns the world.

In Love's Transformation, the first book in The Love Series, teenager Batu fearlessly speaks out against injustice in a post-apocalyptic male-dominated society. The Love Series mirrors the deep cultural and religious prejudices present in some current countries that subject women to inhumane and life-threatening treatment. The women in the books are strong and empowered and oppose and overcome existing prejudices. Each heroines' story is written with strength, bringing an awareness of this "invisible" oppressive world into our mindset. Love's Transformation and The Love Series elicit our empathy as we read tomorrow's news about a mother, wife, or daughter subjected to cultural and religious oppression and brutality. Suddenly these women have faces.

Emil Toth has won the coveted first place for Seven Souls on a Cross and Love's Transformation from the Global Book Awards. He is an author of inspirational, spiritual, dramatic novels and poetry. In the past four decades, Emil created and participated in spiritual support groups, meditation groups and a church prayer group. He has given talks, posted articles and been interviewed on radio and television. He has worked with Healing Touch, Pilgrimage Healing and Reiki healing modalities. In 2000, he co-founded Sacred Waters Spiritual Center and was the facilitator, director and caretaker, helping people to further their awareness. Sacred Waters is providing classes and seminars.
